Dear Tom:

This note is to thank you in order of priority: (a) for the check in the amount of $1.60; and (b) for the splendid job of preparation you had done preliminary to our recruiting sweep. The latter was up to your usual high standard, and as you know I was greatly surprised and also greatly impressed with the numbers and high average caliber of the people we were able to interview. For your information, we ran into the same general situation both at [redacted] much to Fred's amazement since he had been issuing dark and gloomy forecasts at frequent intervals right up to the point when we arrived on the [redacted] campus. Needless to say, however, after the week with you I was not surprised since I had grown to expect only undiluted success.

All the interview forms were awaiting me upon my return. Thanks so much for being so prompt. I am beginning to struggle with the trip report and, needless to say, these forms are indispensable since my memory is no match for the number and variety of people we saw. Once again many thanks for the major part you played in what I consider an unprecedentedly successful tour.

With best wishes

Sincerely,
